

Maria J. Andrade is Associate Professor in Art and Architecture Department at University of Malaga and researcher at the Habitat-Tourism-Territory Institute (iHTT) Universities of Catalonia (UPC) and Malaga (UMA), and the Centro de Investigação em Arquitetura, Urbanismo e Design (CIAUD) University of Lisbon. Her research is focused on the international exchange of architectural and planning ideas. She studies the relationship between urban public space and transportation infrastructure, focusing on the specific challenges and opportunities found in the port cities transformations. She is member of the Scientific Committee of RETE, editor of the special issue "City and Port: Waterfront Integration for Sustainability", in the journal Sustainability, Associate Editor of PortusPlus, and have been invited in different academic institutions such as TU-Delft, Lisbon University, Hafencity Universität, Berkeley and UCD Dublin.