

Assunta Di Vaio, Ph.D., is an Associate Professor of Business Administration at the University of Naples Parthenope, Italy, where she serves as Deputy-Director of the Department of Law. She is qualified as a Full Professor in the same scientific field. Her research fields include managerial accounting for the decision-making processes in the public and private sector; sustainability disclosure and reporting; intellectual capital and sustainable business models; UN 2030 Agenda; digital transformation, Artificial Intelligence, and Blockchain technology. Her research has been published in significant international journals. She is associate editor in several top tier peer-reviewed journals ABS ranked.