

Sociologist Ph.D. Freie Universität Berlin. Former Executive President of the Costa Rican Institute of Pacific Ports, INCOP. Coordinator, researcher and founder (2009) of the Comprehensive Research Program for the Development of Port Cities PROCIP, of the Distance State University of Costa Rica. International consultant for companies in the maritime and port sector. He has a long history in social and economic research on port cities; governance and public policies, urban planning and the environment, productive chains of artisanal fishing, culture, identity and heritage in port cities, among others.