

Born in Santander, a technical architect from the Polytechnic University of Madrid, she has lived in Cadiz since 1980, when she began her political career. During 20 years of political activity in the city of Cadiz, she has developed a city project which has included works of key importance for the logistical development of the Bay. President of the Port Authority of the Bay of Cadiz since 2019, she is committed to the real integration between ports and cities and to repositioning the Port of Cadiz on the world logistics map. Her charismatic personality and great capacity for leadership and work guarantee the success of projects she takes on.