

Eleonora Giovane di Girasole is Senior Researcher at Construction Technologies Institute (ITC) of National Research Council of Italy. Architect, PhD in "Evaluation Methods for the Integrated Conservation of Architectural, Urban and Environmental Heritage". She is Scientific Responsible of CNR research project "Maritime commons: collaborative processes for the regeneration of port cities". She has co-edited several texts, published scientific journal articles, and presented several conference papers. She has participated in many scientific and organizational committees for national and international conferences and workshops.